For its Complaint, Plaintiff Monarch Steel Company, Inc. ("Monarch") states as follows:

Background Statement of Key Facts

1. Monarch is an Ohio corporation with a principal place of business in Cuyahoga County, Ohio, whose business is the sale of steel.
2. Republic Storage Systems, LLC ("Republic") is a Delaware limited liability company which was in the business of steel fabrication in Ohio and was Monarch's customer for a number of years prior to April 2015 when Republic was abruptly put out of business by other defendants in this lawsuit for the purpose of, among other things, not paying Republic's creditors.
3. All of the commercial activity between Monarch and Republic took place in Ohio, and all of the transactions described below were based in whole or in part on Republic's physical location in Ohio.

4. Monarch holds a $1,300,000 judgment against Republic relating to steel Monarch sold to Republic but which Republic did not pay for before it was put out of operation by the other defendants; a copy of the Agreed Judgment Entry describing Monarch's judgment against Republic is attached as Exhibit A hereto (the "Monarch Judgment").

5. The reason that Republic was put out of business and the manner in which it was made defunct expose a complex web of holding companies, capital management firms, and financiers to civil liability as defendants in this lawsuit seeking satisfaction of the Monarch Judgment.

6. Versa Capital Management LLC ("Versa") is a Delaware limited liability company which on information and belief creates and facilitates the capitalization of private investment funds.

21. Echelon Capital, LLC, ("Echelon") is on information and belief a Delaware limited liability company with a principal place of business in Illinois.

22. Lyon Group Holdings, LLC, is on information and belief a Delaware limited liability company with a principal place of business in Illinois, and is referred to below in conjunction with Echelon.

The Salus Loan and The Manus "Rake"

23. On information and belief, in April 2013 Manus opened a large line of credit through Salus which used the assets of the Salus Collateral as collateral for the credit (the "Salus Loan").

24. The Salus Loan enabled Manus to pool the assets of all of the Salus Collateral (which were all owned by Manus, directly or indirectly), and to borrow against all of those assets at once.

25. On information and belief, one of the terms of the Salus Loan was that each component of the Salus Collateral was jointly and severally liable for the entirety of the Salus Loan.

26. On information and belief, another of the terms of the Salus Loan was that Manus alone was able to draw against the line of credit.

27. On information and belief, Manus did take a large draw against the Salus Loan some time after its inception in April 2013 (the "Rake").

28. The effect of the Rake was to put all of the Salus Collateral, and Republic in particular, in an effectively insolvent position and to force the constituent businesses of the collateral to service the debt which, in turn, impaired their ability to do business.

29. In the case of Republic, between April 2013 and April 2015, it was unable to bring its accounts with Monarch current because of the large obligation it had up-stream to Manus because of the Rake.

30. At the time that Manus took the Rake, Republic's debtor relationship to Monarch was known, and was continuing and ongoing.

31. On information and belief, the intent of the Rake was to "take money off the table" for Manus, funnel that money upstream to Versa and its clients, and force Republic, among other members of the Salus Collateral, to attempt to continue to service the Salus Loan.

32. The consequence of the Salus Loan for Republic was that its business was impaired due to its need to service the Salus Loan, which included its inability to pay its large debt to Monarch.

The 2015 Fraudulent Sale Of Republic To Echelon

33. On information and belief in March 2015 Manus was negotiating a sale of Republic's assets to Echelon, though the terms of that sale did not include any of Republic's liabilities which, by that time, included over $1MM in debt to Monarch.

34. Also in March 2015, Monarch initiated a collection action against Republic to collect on its large debt.

35. Thereafter, Manus was aware that it could not simply directly sell Republic's assets to Echelon, leaving Republic as an empty a shell with no ability to pay its debt to Monarch, because doing so would obviously be a fraudulent transfer.

36. Instead, Manus conspired with Salus to launder Republic's assets by having Salus declare a default under the Salus Loan which, in turn, would permit Salus to sell Republic's assets to Echelon under the ruse that the sale was done without the intent to leave Monarch without recourse for Republic's debt.

37. On information and belief, Manus, Salus, and Echelon thereafter conspired to use Salus to launder the sale of Republic's assets to Echelon to fraudulently avoid paying Republic's known creditors, including Monarch.

38. And this is exactly what happened effective April 10, 2015, when Salus seized all of the assets of Republic – and only Republic among all of the constituents of the Salus Collateral – based on a claim that the Salus Loan was in default and sold those assets in an intensely coordinated and prearranged UCC sale to Echelon.

39. As a consequence of the conspiracy with Salus, Manus laundered the assets of Republic through Salus by inducing Salus to invoke a sham declaration of default under the Salus Loan terms and to fraudulently transfer only the assets of Republic to Echelon in a manner that Manus would have been unable to accomplish on its own.

Count One
Relief For Fraudulent Transfers R.C. § 1336.01 et seq.

40. Monarch restates the above in full.

41. The 2013 Salus Loan and the Manus Rake were fraudulent transfers as to Monarch because they were made with actual intent to hinder Republic's creditor, Monarch.

42. The 2013 Salus Loan and the Manus Rake were also fraudulent transfers as to Monarch because they were made without Republic receiving reasonably equivalent value for the debt it needed to service because of the Rake.

43. As a result of the fraudulent transfers of the Salus Loan and Manus Rake, Monarch seeks equitable relief under the circumstances, namely that Manus, Salus, and all of the other Salus Collateral be held jointly and severally liable for the Monarch Judgment, and that they be liable for all costs and attorney fees Monarch has incurred as a result of their conduct.

44. The 2015 Fraudulent Sale was also a fraudulent transfer of Republic's assets orchestrated by Manus and Echelon and facilitated by Salus.

45. The 2015 Fraudulent Sale was done with actual intent to hinder, delay, and defraud Monarch as a creditor of Republic.

46. As a consequence, the 2015 Fraudulent Sale should be set aside and its proceeds should be used to satisfy the Monarch Judgment.

47. As a further result of the fraudulent transfer embodied by the 2015 Fraudulent Sale, Versa, Manus, Salus, and Echelon should all be held jointly and severally liable for the Monarch Judgment, and they should also be liable for all costs and attorney fees Monarch has incurred as a result of their conduct.

48. Due to the willfulness and wantonness of the defendants' actions, and consistent with equitable principals, all defendants should be liable for punitive damages and attorneys fees due to their deliberate and coordinated fraudulent conveyances of Republic's assets to defraud Monarch and frustrate collection of the Monarch Judgment.

Count Two
Tortious Interference With Contract

49. Monarch restates the above in full.

50. In March 2015 Republic had a contractual obligation to Monarch to pay its debts.

51. Manus knew or had knowledge of that contractual obligation and intentionally procured Republic's breach of it.

52. Manus had no justification for its conduct, and Monarch was damaged as a result.

53. Due to Manus' tortious interference with Monarch's contractual relationship with Republic, Manus should be held liable for the full amount of the Monarch Judgment plus costs and attorneys fees.

Count Three Civil Conspiracy

54. Monarch restates the above in full.

55. Manus, Salus, and the Salus Collateral comprised a malicious combination which worked in concert to coordinate the Salus Loan and the Manus Rake which effected a fraudulent transfer against Monarch.

56. Versa, Manus, Salus, and Echelon comprised a malicious combination which worked in concert to coordinate the 2015 Fraudulent Sale.

57. As a result of the conspiracy of the named defendants, Republic was left with no assets against which Monarch could levy to collect on its judgment.

58. Due to the civil conspiracy of the defendants, and the willfulness and wantonness of their conduct, all of the defendants should be held jointly and severally liable for the Monarch Judgment and should be assessed punitive damages in an amount to be determined at trial.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff Monarch Steel Company, Inc., requests this Court to:

- A. Award Monarch the full amount of the Monarch Judgment jointly and severally against all defendants;
- B. Award Monarch its costs and attorney fees; and
- C. Award Monarch any other relief to which it is entitled.
